Explanation

This bill would extend the provisions of the public nuisance statute to include wood smoke emissions, no later than 7/4/10, and could result in a revenue gain to municipalities dependent upon the number of violators and the amount of the fine assessed violators. The maximum fine for Public Health Code violators is $100 per violation.

A potential cost to various municipalities may also result, dependent on the number of complaints received related to wood smoke emissions, investigations prompted, and abatement orders issued. It is anticipated that the Department of Public Health will incur no fiscal impact in response to the enactment of this bill.

The Out Years

The annualized ongoing fiscal impact identified above would be dependent upon the number of violators of the new provisions, the amount of the fines assessed violators, the number of complaints received, investigations prompted, and abatements issued.
